Overview

JSTOR (www.jstor.org) is an online library of more than 2,000 scholarly journals. Digitizing from volume one, issue one, JSTOR makes available the publications' complete runs to search, browse, read, and download. Content includes research articles, book reviews, and images (maps, charts, photographs, and illustrations).

One of the most trusted and widely used academic resources, JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research platform while preserving this content for future generations.

For more information on JSTOR, visit about.jstor.org.

JSTOR for Family Research

Use the rich historical scholarship available on JSTOR to place your family in context, which can help you to discover new information:

- Gain knowledge, context, and details around places, times, and historical trends (including immigration patterns, political movements, and social issue of the day).
- Research historical figures, places, and events
- Find state- and region specific information and history
- Learn new research methodologies and new sources to continue your work

And so much more!

The scholarship on JSTOR is unlikely to support finding specific names, dates, and places. Instead, JSTOR can be the key resource to build out the story around your family history. No one lives in isolation and knowing the context around your family's history can lead to a deeper understanding of your past.

Content on JSTOR

More than 2,000 journals representing 50 disciplines from the arts and sciences to complement your work. We highlighted a handful of journals that may be of particular interest to people researching their family histories.

Journals covering the history of religions and specific ethnic population in America:

JSTOR Search Tips

There are two search forms on JSTOR.

1. Basic Search

On main page at www.jstor.org and at the top of most pages

Quick Basic Search Tips

- Place search terms within quotation marks to search for exact phrases (ex: "orphan train")
- Use Boolean operators (AND, OR, and NOT) to search alternate and more precise terms (ex: "marriage records" AND "South Carolina")
- Use the tilde (~) symbol at the end of a search term to factor in multiple spellings (ex: Dostoyevsky~ will return search results with Dostoyevsky as well as its variant spellings: Dostoevsky, Dostoievki, Dostoevsky, etc...)

JSTOR Daily

JSTOR Daily (daily.jstor.org) is a free online magazine that offers a quirky, smart, historical perspective to current affairs. Using the scholarship available on JSTOR, stories provide insight, commentary, and analysis. We publish daily blog posts, columns, and weekly feature articles on a wide range of topics.

Of particular interest to this audience may be The Genealogy Factor column by D. Joshua Taylor. A professional genealogist and co-host of the popular PBS series Genealogy Roadshow, Taylor wrote an eight-article column in summer 2015 about unearthing discoveries to provide context and clarity for anyone tracing their past.

All JSTOR Daily stories link to cited articles on JSTOR freely.
