“Proof is a fundamental concept in genealogy. To merit confidence, each conclusion about an ancestor must have sufficient credibility to be accepted as “proved.” Acceptable conclusions, therefore, meet the Genealogical Proof Standard (GPS) [which consists of]:

- reasonably exhaustive research;
- complete, accurate source citations to the source or sources of each information item;
- tests—through processes of analysis and correlation—of all sources, ..., and evidence;
- resolution of conflicts among evidence items; and
- a soundly reasoned, coherently written conclusion.

Each element contributes to a conclusion's credibility in a different way, described in the table below, but all the elements are necessary to establish proof.”<sup>1</sup>

Element of the GPS	Contribution to Credibility
Reasonably exhaustive research	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Assumes examination of a wide range of high quality sources</li><li>• Minimizes the probability that undiscovered evidence will overturn a too-hasty conclusion</li></ul>
Complete and accurate citation of sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Demonstrates the extent of the search and the quality of the sources</li><li>• Allows others to replicate the steps taken to reach the conclusion. (Inability to replicate the research casts doubt on the conclusion.)</li></ul>
Testing—through processes of analysis and correlation—of all sources, information items, and evidence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Facilitates sound interpretation of the data contributed by each source</li><li>• Ensures that the conclusion reflects all the evidence</li></ul>
Resolution of conflicting evidence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Substantiates the conclusion's credibility. (If conflicting evidence is not resolved, a credible conclusion is not possible.)</li></ul>
Soundly reasoned, coherently written conclusion	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Eliminates the possibility that the conclusion is based on bias, preconception, or inadequate appreciation of the evidence</li><li>• Explains how the evidence led to the conclusion</li></ul>

THE GOAL

To find Eli Bush's paternal ancestry. It was believed that Eli Bush (1826 – 1912) was a descendant of Daniel Bush (1750 – 1831) of Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, but the connection between Eli's father Jacob Bush and Daniel Bush could not be found.

THE BEGINNING

Eli Bush's parents were at first thought to be David and Henrietta Bush. This proved erroneous when the following two pieces of evidence were found which stated that Eli Bush's parents were Jacob Bush and Mary Rimmel. (This false start exemplifies the need for a "reasonably exhaustive search.")

- 1.) Eli's death certificate (not originally provided because the descendant said "both of his parents, Jacob Bush and Mary Rimmel, were born in PA. The death certificate shows no other information about Jacob Bush and Mary Rimmel.")
- 2.) Memoirs of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, Volume 2 (Madison, WI: Northwestern Historical Association, 1904):253 which states that "His parents were Jacob and Mary (Rimmel) Bush, both natives of Westmoreland County, PA."

Name	Eli Bush

A biography of Alpheus Arlington Bush, Eli and Jane Bush's first child, stated that Eli and Jane went to live in Marion County, Ohio, circa 1889. They had returned to Bell Township, Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania by the time the 1900 census was taken. The Marion, Ohio, City Directory for 1890 – 1891 lists Eli Bush, Sr., blacksmith, 121 Grand Avenue. There were no subsequent directory listings for Eli Bush, Sr.

From a previous researcher: "Of course, Eli Bush was of German stock and must have gone over to the Presbyterian Church upon his marriage into the Iddings clan." "Jesse Miller, Jane Iddings Bush's grandfather, donated the land upon which the Poke Run Presbyterian church now stands [in Washington Twp.] - the oldest house of worship in that section of the county."<sup>2</sup>
