

Chat log 16 Jan 2018
Finding Thomas' Father an 18th Century Prince William County Virginia Case Study

Audience Question:

Q: Is Deedmapper an actual program, or reference to mapping deeds in general...I see there is a 2015 webinar about it on Legacy and wondering

<https://legacy.familytreewebinars.com/deedmapper-c137.php>

A: It's an actual program.

Audience Question:

Q: Deedmapper is available from www.directlinesoftware.com for $99 (for first time buyer).

A: thanks

Audience Question:

Q: directlinesoftware also has a free "Land Record Reference" that provides useful information regarding state property systems.

A: thanks

Audience Question:

Q: Also we are indexing the names in the Chancery cases for Prince William County - the Library of Virginia has the cases online but not fully indexed. they will be on Prince Williams online site

A: thanks

Audience Question:

Q: Which NGSQ has the article for this--see Figure 3?

A: June 2010 NGSQ

Audience Question:

Q: Thank you so much! This webinar will be so helpful to me in finding the father of my ancestor Job Davis 1772-1860 of Prince William County. He had a son William who sometimes distinguished himself from the other William Davises by calling himself "William of Job."

A: The Baltimore and BUrlington in Catherine Demarais's upcoming webinar refers to Baltimore, MD and Burlington, VT.

Melissa Johnson (to All - Entire Audience): 9:16 PM: Baltimore and Burlington in Catherine Desmarais's upcoming webinar refer to Baltimore, MD and Burlington, VT.

Audience Question:

Q: Baltimore and Burlington was in a future BCG webinar.

A: thanks

Audience Question:

Q: <https://www.cyndislist.com/land/platting/>

A: thanks

Audience Question:

Q: Abstracts are derivative records. They make a great finding aid, but original deeds for the properties of interest should be examined.

A: thanks

Audience Question:

Q: There's one called Tract Plotter: <http://tractplotter.com/>

A: thanks

Q: Platt Plotter