Chat log 8 Oct 2021
Seven Immigration Methodologies, with Case Studies Across the Centuries by David S. Ouimette

Audience Question:
Q: Naming patters can be a blessing & a curse!   ;)   Way too many people with the same name in the family/area ... even women.
A: So true!

Marian Pierre-Louis (to All - Entire Audience): 12:50 PM: Cluster research
Marian Pierre-Louis (to All - Entire Audience): 12:51 PM: Surname heat maps
Audience Question:
Q: Grenham's Irish Names at https://www.johngrenham.com/surnames/
A: thanks

Marian Pierre-Louis (to All - Entire Audience): 12:58 PM: DNA Clusters
Marian Pierre-Louis (to All - Entire Audience): 1:03 PM: Chain Migration
Audience Question:
Q: Great suggestions - a few I hadn't thought of before.   I missed the first half due to internet issues (GGRRHHH :-) but will definitely watch the recording.
A: Yes, really great suggestions.

Audience Question:
Q: Love the idea of chain migration. I have used it a bit when searching immigration records and "find" all people from the same small town or region.
A: Nice

Audience Question:
Q: I have a Great-Grandmother who emigrated from Galicia to upstate NY.   Researching the chain migration sounds like a must for breaking down my brick wall!
A: It does!

Audience Question:
Q: Elegant research!
A: :)

Audience Question:
Q: The heat map method is a great concept to help me identify my Irish ancestors. Thank you!
A: So glad.